HIGHWAY MARKED IN PITTSBURGH

Efforts of Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce Now Bearing Fruit.

TRAFFIC INCREASE SEEN

All Envelopes of Police Department of Smoky City Now Carry Map of Lincoln Highway in Pennsylvania.

Efforts of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce to have Pittsburgh recognize its duties as a city on the Lincoln Highway are now beginning to bear fruit.

Several weeks ago, attention of other cities on the Lincoln Highway in Pennsylvania was brought to Pittsburgh's point-blank refusal to mark the route of the Lincoln Highway within the city limits, by the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce. Other Chambers of Commerce and automobile clubs in cities on the Lincoln Highway in this State were told by the local Chamber organization that, because of Pittsburgh's refusal to mark the Lincoln Highway within the city limits, traffic east and west was being routed around Pittsburgh and away from the Lincoln Highway.

These Chambers of Commerce and automobile clubs wrote to the secretary of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and to several of the larger automobile clubs in the Smoky City, asking that their members use their influence with the city council to have that body allow Lincoln Highway sign posts to be erected along the route of the coast-to-coast highway within the city limits.

The route of the Lincoln Highway through Pittsburgh has now been marked and, in addition, all envelopes sent out through the mail by the Pittsburgh police department have printed on the back a map of Pennsylvania marked with a heavy line showing the route of the Lincoln Highway between the Ohio line and Philadelphia.

Printed above the map is the announcement: "Pittsburgh is on the Lincoln Highway, the shortest and best automobile route between the East and the West."

This propaganda was inaugurated to offset reports circulated throughout the United States that the Lincoln Highway in Pennsylvania and especially in the vicinity of Pittsburgh is in bad condition and that the route of the highway was not marked within the city limits.

The use of the Pennsylvania map on the envelopes has met with the hearty approval of Pittsburgh business men, who have requested that the practice be continued. Many Pittsburgh automobile dealers have announced that they too will use the envelopes similarly printed with the Highway map.

As a result of this betterment of conditions in and around Pittsburgh increased traffic from western states is already noted passing through Gettysburg by those in touch with the situation here.

RELEASE FOUR ON BAIL

Alleged Violators of Dry Laws Held For August Term of Court.

At preliminary hearings before Justice of the Peace J. L. Hill this morning four defendants, charged with violations of the dry law, were released under $1,000 bail each. They were charged with the illegal possession and sale of intoxicating liquor.

The other two men who were given preliminary hearings were George Treadway and William Chronister, both of Hanover, charged with the illegal transportation and possession of liquor in violation of the State dry law and the Volstead act.

George Walters, Esq., Baltimore street, represented O'Kul and Godfrey, while Treadway and Chronister had as their attorneys Walter Rochow, district attorney of York county, and J. Donald Swope, Esq., of Gettysburg.

DOWNPOUR HALTS ALL ROAD TRAVEL

Automobiles Are Marooned in Town With Roads And Bridges Flooded.

Traffic in at least three directions from Gettysburg was impossible this afternoon as a result of the rain storm, which reached cloudburst proportions during the day. Tourists en route to York, Harrisburg, Littlestown and Emmitsburg found swollen creeks barring their progress. Reports from the direction of Chambersburg indicate the Lincoln Highway west remained open.

Streams began to rise shortly after the rain began, accompanied by a heavy electrical disturbance. As the day advanced, the waters became higher until around noon, water was running over the roads north, east and south of Gettysburg.

As there was no letup in the downpour after noon, the swollen streams continued rising at an alarming rate, until the water had completely inundated the roads over which the three directions. At Two Bridges it was reported that lines of cars were being held up on both sides of the streams over which the two bridges cross because the water in the streams was flowing over the roads to a depth of four feet.

At the Alms House bridge over Rock Creek on the Harrisburg road, the stream was said to be two blocks wide, overflowing the banks on both sides.

With the possible exception of an old wooden bridge on the Littlestown road over Rock Creek, there is little danger of the bridges on the Harrisburg and York roads being washed away, it is pointed out, since these are modern structures of concrete and steel, and were built to withstand flood conditions.

Low lands in many places over the county were miniature lakes, varying from several inches to several feet in depth. Corn was reported to have been washed out on several farms.

According to many persons today's rain was the heaviest this county has experienced in many years. Reports at the office of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad this afternoon were that the 3 o'clock train to Harrisburg experienced no difficulties at this end from washouts of the roadbed.

Streets in town were flooded and in some places the water was running in sheets from curb to curb. At the foot of Baltimore street hill, the water stood a foot deep. Stalled automobiles were numerous and many men caught in their offices by the downpour remained indoors rather than take a drenching getting home.

HELPED PICK UP SHOT CHAPLAIN

Bryon Carpenter, Lewistown Veteran, Tells of Cruel Shooting.

One of the men who helped pick up the Rev. Horatio S. Howell, chaplain of the 90th, Pennsylvania Volunteers, after the minister was cruelly shot in cold blood on the steps in front of Christ Lutheran church, Chambersburg street, on July 1, 1863, spent the weekend in Gettysburg.

He is Bryon Carpenter, 80 years old last February, whose home is at Lewistown, where he lives retired. He was accompanied here by his wife, their daughter and son-in-law and son. The party left for Baltimore this morning where they will spend a week.

Carpenter, a member of Company F, 107th, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, was taken prisoner during the first day's fight here, and was brought by the "Johnnies" as he calls the Confederates, into Center Square where a large number of Union prisoners were being held.

"When we were in front of Christ Lutheran church," Mr. Carpenter reminisces, "Rev. Howell was standing against a board fence which stood where the stone fence now stands on both sides of the church, with his hands resting on some muskets propped against the fence.

Veteran Pastor at Camp Hill Helped Organize Church, In 1897.

GRADUATED FROM HERE

Also Sent His Two Sons to Gettysburg College and Seminary—Formerly Served Mechanicsburg in Addition.

The Rev. Dr. E. D. Weigle, organizer and only pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church at Camp Hill, Cumberland county, near Harrisburg, officially presented his resignation to his congregation Sunday morning at the conclusion of the services. Dr. Weigle is a graduate of Gettysburg College with the class of 1875, and was ordained to the ministry by the Lutheran Theological Seminary here three years later.

The action came as a complete surprise to the members of the congregation, it is said. Dr. Weigle expressed his sincere regret at the thought of leaving the church, but explained that his age impelled him to take the step.

The resignation will be acted on by the church council in the next meeting which will be held on the second Wednesday of August.

Doctor Weigle has been identified with the Camp Hill Trinity Lutheran Church from the time of its organization until Sunday. He was a member of the Cumberland Valley Conference committee which was appointed to canvass the town and adjoining territory in 1897 to determine the feasibility of establishing a Lutheran Church there. The committee which undertook this work was composed of the Rev. Drs. Weigle, Wile, Kostler and Fleck, of Harrisburg, and Harry Nech, of Mechanicsburg.

They found a number of Lutherans in the town and vicinity and called the first meeting for September 13, 1897.

Only Pastor Considered

Doctor Weigle preached the first sermon on that date in the old Soldiers' Orphans' School, taking for his text, "Diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

One hundred and twenty-five people gathered to hear Doctor Weigle's first sermon and were so impressed that no other minister was ever considered for the pastor if the church should be established.

The following year, April 24, 1898, the Trinity Lutheran Church was officially organized with thirty-six charter members. On March 6 of the following year ground was broken for the present church. The church was dedicated by the Rev. Dr. D. M. Gilbert, pastor of Zion Church of Harrisburg, on November 5, 1899, and at the dedication suff.

TEST IS SUSPENDED

The regular Monday noon test of Gettysburg's siren fire alarm was omitted this noon, according to Fire Chief James B. Aumen, on account of the storm which was raging at the time. Mr. Aumen said that due to the lightning which flashed near and far, he feared a test of the signal would unnecessarily alarm residents here.

Pathetic Scenes Attend Burial of McCall Lad at Littlestown

Mother Faints As She Gazes For Last Time On Face of Boy Killed by Bullet. Companion, Who fired Fatal Shot, is Dragged Away From Grave of Victim.

Scenes unusually pathetic and distressing attended the burial at Littlestown Saturday of John McCall, 15 years old, a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Swisher, West Middle street, Gettysburg, who was accidentally shot to death by his playmate, Henry Voss Wallick, at Wrightsville, Thursday.

When the casket was opened just before it was lowered into the grave to permit the host of relatives and sympathetic friends, mostly from Littlestown, to take a last look on the features of the lad they knew and loved, the mother, Mrs. Carter McCall, swooned and fell in a heap by the side of the coffin. Fear was expressed over her condition for a time.

As a climax of the tragedy, the boy, whose finger accidentally touched off the cartridge which sent the fatal bullet into the brain of his lifelong chum, was overcome with grief as the body of John was lowered into the ground and it was necessary for loving and tender hands to literally drag him from the cemetery.

The shooting was purely accidental, relatives of the dead boy say, and young Wallick had been absolved of all blame in connection with it. The tragedy occurred at "Greenspot," a camping site along the Susquehanna River between Wrightsville and Accomac, York county. The boys had accompanied Wilbur Reisinger and Noah Kissinger, men, on a fishing trip and the revolver was taken along for protection. The boys found the weapon and after young McCall had examined it, he passed it to Wallick and while the latter was looking it over the cartridge was discharged, sending the bullet on its deadly journey through the forehead of young McCall, causing instant death.

Wallick rushed frantically for help and had difficulty, it is said, in convincing the men in the party that he had actually shot his playmate. He led them, however, to the lifeless body of his chum.

The McCalls have been lifelong residents of Littlestown until three years ago when they moved to Wrightsville so that Mr. McCall, a passenger conductor on the Pennsylvania Railroad, might spend more time when he was not on duty at his home. The father and brother of Mr. McCall are said to have met tragic deaths as a result of accidents on the railroad, where they worked.

Brief funeral services were held at the home in Wrightsville early Saturday morning. The funeral cortege then left Wrightsville at 7:14 A. M. for Littlestown and upon arrival there, high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. Aloysius Catholic church. The casket was covered with floral tributes, among which was a large wreath of flowers from the members of the Wrightsville High School, of which he was a member. Beginning on Friday afternoon and up until the body was taken away from Wrightsville there was a continuous stream of people passing into the house to view the body. The sophomore class of the Wrightsville High school, of which the deceased was a member, went to the home in a body. Mr. and Mrs. John Wallick and son, Voss, accompanied the funeral cortege to Littlestown.

PLANS TO REBUILD ALL ONEWAY SPANS

State Highway Department Hopes To Get To This Work Next Spring.

Motor traffic has increased so amazingly the past few years that the State Highway Department has sensed the absolute necessity and importance of wider bridge structures on its road system, which will make it possible for automobiles, trucks and other vehicles to pass each other without danger of collision.

A recent survey by the Department shows a total of 1,834 bridges less than 16 feet wide, several of them in Adams county on primary and secondary State roads. Under the law trucks are permitted a width of ninety inches and, consequently, these old narrow structures constitute an ever-present and serious menace to all users of the highways.

Plans are now being prepared to widen the more vitally important ones located on the Lincoln Highway, including the one seven miles east of Gettysburg, so that when the working season opens next spring—and if the present financial resources for repairs is continued—operations may commence immediately. Some of the structures to be replaced are from fifty to one hundred years old and many of them are in a bad state of repair.

Until these unsafe structures can be rebuilt with modern spans, the Highway Department is exercising every precaution for the safety of the traveler and warning signs are being erected which read: "Danger. One-way traffic bridge."

The policy of the Department is to construct all new bridges with a width of twenty-four feet.

MANY MOTOR VEHICLES

ON ROADS ON SUNDAY

Hotels, Garages and Restaurants Feel Heavy Traffic in Their Receipts.

Three thousand seventy-two motor vehicles passed a given point on the Lincoln Highway just west of Gettysburg from 5 a. m. until 11 p. m., Sunday, according to a count made by Larky Bucher, a checker for the State Highway Department. Figures on traffic west of Gettysburg were available only for Sunday, May 6, when 2,083 motor driven vehicles passed the same point west of town. On the same day, 2,005 motor vehicles passed a given point just east of the borough line.

Hotels, garages and restaurants here felt the unusually heavy traffic Sunday, large volumes of business being reported on every side.

SCOUTS ARRIVE HOME

Arnold Orner Wins Prize For First Class Scout.

The Arendtsville Troop of Boy Scouts returned on Saturday from a two weeks' camp in the Seven Mountains of Mifflin county. Eighteen boys spent all or part of the two weeks with the camp. Great progress was made in scouting, under the stimulus of two prizes offered to the two scouts passing the greatest number of tests during the period of the camp. The first prize of a scout knife was won by Arnold Orner, who completed his first class tests, the first scout of the troop to do so. John Raffensperger, who completed his second class tests, won the second prize of a scout axe. Other scouts to complete their second class tests were Daniel Wolff, Harold Trostel, Joseph Snyder and Marshall Longenecker. Four new members of the troop passed their tenderfoot tests. They were Arthur Slaybaugh, Donald Kane, Thomas Raffensperger and Donald Lawver.

The afternoons in camp were devoted to games, nature study and hiking. Hikes of from ten to twenty miles were taken. The troop also went by automobile to visit the celebrated Penn's Cave, near Center Hall, Center county, and from there to State College.

The boys found much of interest in nature. Wild turkeys appeared to be plentiful, two broods having been found on their roosts within a hundred yards of the camp. Donald Kane sighted a wild cat. A half dozen other scouts who were with him testify as to the genuineness of the cat. Only a few snakes were seen. Robert Hoffman killed a rattlesnake, and Roy Hoffman a copperhead. The boys were much struck by the fact that the Seven Mountain area and the Juniata Valley appear to have received more rain in the last month than Adams county. On Thursday of last week there was a downpour lasting all day, and on Friday evening a rain approaching the dimensions of a cloudburst and lasting several hours drenched the country between Lewistown and Harrisburg.

RED MEN MEET AT SPRING GROVE

Convention of York-Adams District Attracts Large Crowds There.

1,000 PERSONS IN PARADE

Eighteen Tribes of Order, Five Tribes of Pocahontas and Ten Bands Make up Parade Held in Afternoon.

A record-breaking crowd gathered at Spring Grove Saturday, attracted by the events held in connection with the thirty-ninth annual convention of the York-Adams district association of the Improved Order of Red Men which was held there, with numbers of Gettysburg tribesmen in attendance.

Two separate sessions of the meeting were held, the morning assembly opening at 9:30 a. m. in the auditorium of the Paper Makers' Club. Presiding were the officers of the association, president William McSherry; vice-president, J. P. Gemmill; treasurer, James M. Gross, and secretary, Edward L. Showalter.

The address of welcome was delivered, followed by responses from the board of officers, following which the regular routine of business was taken up.

During the luncheon hour, between noon and 1 p. m., special arrangements were made to accommodate the crowd by having meals served by the Ladies' Aid Society of Mt. Zion Reformed Church, in the basement of that church. A booth was conducted there by Lil-le-wauk tribe.

The afternoon session opened at 1 p. m., and a baseball game in the afternoon between Spring Grove and New Holland in the York county league furnished diversion during the afternoon. Ten bands, eighteen tribes of the order and five tribes of Pocahontas, which totalled about 1,000 men and women, were in line for the parade held in the afternoon, forming at 2:30 p. m. The chief marshal was J. Q. A. Spangler, with Harvey A. Myers and Philip Stambaugh as aides. In the second division, A. J. Hershey was marshal, and George F. Hershey and William L. Bollinger were aides; in the third division, Paul L. Myers was marshal, aided by Howard Brown and Cletus (Continued on Third Page)

MOTH SCARE SUBSIDES

Department of Agriculture Corrects Report of Two Shipments.

Farmers and fruit growers of this section, who viewed with alarm the recent State Department of Agriculture report to the effect that two shipments of nursery stock carrying egg masses of the dread Gypsy Moth had been lost, will be relieved to know that an unintentional error in the report sent out by the Department implied a situation directly opposite to the actual result of the Gypsy Moth inspection, according to word received here today from Harrisburg.

Instead of indicating the loss of two of the 644 shipments of the New England nursery stock in this State, the statement should have read that a careful and thorough inspection made by the plant industry specialists of the Department had disclosed only two lots in which egg masses of the Gypsy Moth were found. These were promptly exterminated, the corrected report states, and there is no need to fear another outbreak of the pest.

Careful watch and continued inspection, particularly in Warren and Washington counties where the infested nursery stock was located, will be maintained by the officials of the Bureau of Plant Industry and growers are being advised to employ proper control measures.

The Arendtsville aggregation comes highly recommended and a fast game is assured. The game will begin promptly at 5:30 o'clock in order that no less than seven innings can be played.

HEART TROUBLE IS RUMOR

President's Plans For Trip and Speaking Tour Are Cancelled. Will Be Taken Back to Washington.

(By Associated Press)

San Francisco, July 30.—President Harding will be rushed back to Washington by special train as soon as he recovers from his present illness sufficiently to travel, probably within two weeks.

The two San Francisco physicians who were called into consultation by General Sawyer last night were again in conference with the President's personal physician this morning. The two local doctors, R. L. Wilbur, president of Stanford University, and B. M. Cooper, a heart specialist, had spent the night in the hotel where the president is ill.

Secretary Work, of the Interior Department, a former president of the American Medical Association, again met with the consultants. Prior to the meeting none of the physicians would make any statement, but it was indicated that General Sawyer would issue a bulletin later in the day.

Marion, O., July 30.—President Harding suffered several attacks of indigestion 20 years ago, accompanied by a slight disturbance of the heart, but at no time then was his condition serious, according to the chief executive's home-town friends. This is the only illness Mr. Harding has had, local people declare, in which there was anything akin to heart trouble.

Wage Parley Broken Off; Present Agreements Expire August 31.

(By Associated Press)

Atlantic City, July 30.—Their wage negotiations having been broken off because of a disagreement over the check-off, anthracite miners and operators were marking time today awaiting some developments which would bring them together again. Close observers of the situation were not surprised when the negotiations were interrupted and would not be surprised if they are not resumed before the expiration on August 31 of the present contract under which the miners are working.

Although those familiar with the situation look for a resumption of the parley, they do not believe that agreements on the principal demands of the miners including a 20 per cent increase in wages will be reached before the present scale expires.

Therefore, they expect a suspension of mining on September 1 unless government and other influences prevail upon the miners to continue work, pending further negotiations.

United States Steel touched a new low record for the year. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

KIDNAPS POLICE CHIEF IN FLIGHT

Prisoner Knocks Constable Off Running Board Of Car And Flees.

Xenia, O., July 30.—Fred Stumic, after kidnaping Chief of Police M. E. Graham late Saturday evening, after the officer had arrested him on a charge of menacing the life of his wife, from whom he was separated, was shot and captured north of Miamisburg by Constable Earl Schramm, of that place.

The police chief was rescued, uninjured, and helped Miamisburg officials to return Stumic to this city. Stumic, who is about 30 years old, had been separated from his wife about a month and was living at his home in Dayton. Mrs. Stumic was living with her parents. Recently Stumic was said to have read in the newspapers that his wife had asked the courts to grant her an order preventing Stumic from abusing her.

He came to Xenia to try to induce his wife not to press the court action. At her home he is said to have abused her, striking her with a rifle and a revolver which he carried. He was also alleged to have threatened to kill his wife's mother, Mrs. Harry L. Clark.

Stumic was in his machine when Graham appeared at the Clark home to arrest him. The officer entered the tonneau of the automobile and Special Officer George Spencer, who had accompanied the chief, mounted the running board preparatory to entering also, when Stumic knocked Spencer to the ground and sped away.

Three automobile loads of officers and citizens started in pursuit of Stumic's car, but soon lost the trail. Surrounding cities and villages were notified of the kidnaping. The machine first was sighted speeding through Miamisburg. A few minutes later a report was received that the machine had been wrecked at Bear Creek, about a mile north of Miamisburg.

Constable Schramm hurried to the scene and shot Stumic through the cheek when he attempted to escape.

FINDS METHOD TO DIVIDE ELEMENTS

Chicago Chemist Succeeds In Breaking Up Chlorine Gas.

Chicago, July 30.—Two chemical elements hitherto considered indivisible have been separated by Dr. William D. Harkins, professor of physical chemistry at the University of Chicago, whose experiments in this field are expected to revolutionize the chemical theory of a century.

Doctor Harkins explained how he tried to separate chlorine, the greenish yellow gas used by the Germans when they first introduced chemical warfare. Chlorine has long been considered one of the ninety-odd elements, like carbon, oxygen and hydrogen, which have defied all attempts at division. These so-called elements are present in the earth and in the sun.

"For five years we worked," he said. "We tried all sorts of apparatus and used more than a ton of hydrogen chloride before we succeeded. The gas was diffused through the stems of church warden pipes. These pipes are made of white clay and have stems between eighteen and twenty-four inches long. The lighter parts of the gas passed outward through the stems. The heavier parts remained, and thus we discovered that our so-called element, chlorine, could be separated and another time-honored theory had surrendered. Virtually all physicists and chemists in the United States have accepted the results."

Doctor Harkins then demonstrated that mercury, also considered a fundamental substance, can be broken up.

"These experiments indicate, then, that there probably is only one fundamental element instead of the ninety we have been pinning our faith on all these years," Doctor Harkins said. "That basic element is hydrogen, and, according to my theory, all the so-called elements are compounds of helium or hydrogen itself is built up from hydrogen, then all the elements are intratomic compounds of hydrogen."

Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker, and family, of Indiana, this State, are spending several days at the home of Professor and Mrs. Milton H. Roth, Broadway, before taking up their residence at "Arden," the summer home of the Rev. Dr. Baker along Marsh Creek.

Those who spent Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Smith, Hanover street, were Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Orner, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Orner, and daughters, Olive and Ethel, of Johnstown; Mr. and Mrs. Emory Orner, Mr. and Mrs. Pius Orner, of Arnolds, of Arendtsville; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Orner and daughters, Nettie and Kathryn, and son, Orville, and Miss Laura Little, of Gettysburg.

N. Y. POLICE STILL SEEK MURDERER

98 Caught In Raids At Coney Island Hunting Slayer.

HUNT PROVES FRUITLESS

Red Haired Woman Who Was In Death Taxi Was Reported Seen In House There.

New York, July 30.—A tip that the red-haired woman who was in the taxicab when Policemen Charles Reynolds and Frank Romanella were shot to death last Thursday night was in a bungalow at Coney Island Sunday resulted in the arrest of ninety-eight men and women, all of whom were charged with disorderly conduct.

The entire uniformed and detective force of Coney Island, augmented by six detectives from Manhattan and Brooklyn, searched every bungalow and pool parlor, coffee house, restaurant for the woman. The search continued from 11 o'clock Saturday night until 7 o'clock Sunday morning.

The tip was telephoned by a woman over the police wires from a telephone booth in a cigar store. The voice said that "if you want the red-headed dame who was in the taxicab when the two cops were shot go to a bungalow at Mermaid avenue and West Twenty-fourth street."

Throughout the night and all Sunday morning the search continued and although the police brought in ninety-eight men and women prisoners, several of whom answered the general description of the men wanted for the murder of the two policemen, they were permitted to plead to the charge of disorderly conduct after they had satisfied the police of their identity.

One woman, with auburn hair, was among the prisoners, but she was too young, being only 19 years old and a typical flapper. She paid a fine of $5 and promised not to again disturb the peace of Coney Island. "Find the red-haired woman who is held prisoner by the slayer to keep her silent."

This is the order sent broadcast Sunday to every member of the police department from private to inspector in the search for the man.

The woman's mortal fear of the slayer just before the killing, when she was being beaten by him, is believed to have been responsible for her statement to the policemen that she was married to the man and that she did not want their help.

Following out the same theory, the police believe that she now is being detained against her will and thus prevented from giving information, either directly or through roundabout sources, which might lead to the apprehension of the slayer and the taxicab chauffeur who sped away after the two policemen, mortally wounded, had toppled into the street.

Policemen in every Long Island town are aiding in the effort to check up yellow taxicabs bearing the name "Yale" and also are seeking to ascertain whether there is any woman missing who answers the description of the one in the car, whose screams on the Queensboro bridge led the two policemen to death.

There is a persistent report that the men who operated the touring car in which the two officers pursued the taxicab have identified the photograph of a chauffeur in the state license bureau as that of the man who drove the murder cab.

efficient funds and subscriptions to pay for the edifice were in the church treasury.

Church Now Has 293

From the beginning of the church in Camp Hill until the Spring of 1912 Doctor Weigle served as pastor in connection with a charge in Mechanicsburg. In the spring of that year the new parsonage in Camp Hill was completed and he moved to Camp Hill, henceforth giving his complete time to the Camp Hill charge.

Under Doctor Weigle's charge the pastorate has grown to a membership of 293 in a town of constantly shifting population while the Sunday School had an enrollment of 180 members. The church in its twenty-five years has acquired and paid for property valued at $33,000.

One of Dr. Weigle's sons, Rev. Dr. Luther A. Weigle was trained at Gettysburg for the ministry, graduating from College with the class of 1900, and is at present professor of Christian Nurture at the Yale School of Divinity.

His other son, Rev. Daniel E. Weigle, graduated from College with the class of 1906, and was for several years a Lutheran pastor in Philadelphia. He has since moved to Wisconsin, where he is now engaged in business.

WILSON GIVES UP WAY-TO FORTUNE

Quits Law Firm Lest He Be Accused Of Misusing Influence.

Washington, July 30.—Woodrow Wilson has thrust aside a potential fortune to keep beyond reproach the position of a former president of the United States, it is reported here.

It was because he could not harmonize the business of his law office with his personal code of ethics that he withdrew from partnership with Bainbridge Colby, the last secretary of state of the Wilson administration. The withdrawal of Mr. Wilson from the law firm of Wilson & Colby attracted little attention when it was announced some months ago, and the reasons that moved the former president have just become known.

Washington has become the modern El Dorado for former government officials with "legal training. Scores of former cabinet officers, senators, representatives and minor officials have opened law offices here and are making fortunes representing clients before government departments, largely on the strength of their former official connections.

Mr. Wilson, according to his friends, has undoubtedly relinquished a potential fortune by stepping out of the partnership, for cases involving large fees would be attracted to the name and ability represented by the firm.

The health of the former president was one reason suggested at the time he severed connection with Mr. Colby as the reason for his action. But his health then had greatly improved and the marked improvement has continued.

At the bottom of Mr. Wilson's step, his friends said, was his high sense of honor.

As a former president, Mr. Wilson concluded that the firm in which he was a partner could not with propriety take cases involving any department of the government, especially cases that might have relation to his administration. It might be insinuated that he was merely exercising his influence.

A number of departmental cases had been offered to the firm, and as Mr. Wilson believed Colby could with propriety take any case that did not involve the state department, he felt that it would be only fair to step out and permit Colby to accept the cases.

TELLS HOBOES TO EDUCATE LABOR

J. E. How, Millionaire Hobo, Out On Bail To Address Convention.

PREACHES SERMON ALSO

Migratory Workers Are Gathered at Hobo Labor College in Philadelphia, and Hear Socialist Speeches.

Philadelphia, July 30.—James Eads How, millionaire hobo, graduate of Harvard and Oxford universities, was arrested Sunday morning by police of the Fourth and Race streets station, charged with a breach of ordinance. He will be given a hearing before Magistrate Toughill this morning. Doctor How gave his address as 119 North Thirteenth street, St. Louis, Mo.

How, who is in this city to attend the conference of the migratory workers now being held at the Hobo Labor College, 923 Ridge avenue, was the speaker at an open-air meeting in Franklin Square, Seventh and Vine streets. A large crowd gathered about the lanky "ho," who is known all over the continent, and after the meeting How began passing out socialistic literature.

With How at the time of his arrest was a large number of the delegates to the convention and several leaders and speakers. As How was placed in the patrol the crowd formed in line and followed him to the station house, where he was slated and placed in a cell until friends arrived and obtained his release until this morning.

Prior to the meeting in the public square the doctor was the preacher at the regular Sabbath service of the Congregation of Daily Life in the hobo college.

At the afternoon session of the conference Doctor How was the principal speaker. He told how, with the little knowledge of law he had and the assistance of Nicholas Klein, an Indianapolis attorney and national counselor for the hoboes, he managed to obtain his freedom in order that he might be able to address the conference in the afternoon.

Doctor How said the hobo who has not affiliated himself with the hobo college is a detriment to his class; that he is unintelligent and has no knowledge along the lines of politics, economics and industrial conditions as they concern him. He said the transformation of this country into a proletariat could not be hoped for until the working classes are educated.

The minds of men and animals were compared by Nicholas Klein. Mr. Klein said man's mind is a creative organ, and he uses it to think out his life problems. The animal cannot use his mind in such a manner, he said. "The only way to rid the world of war is to rid the world of poverty," he declared.

"Jesus—the Man" was the topic discussed by Gerald Gearlson, a New York delegate. The abolishment of "possession and ownership" was pleaded for by the speaker. He said the Bible is only an economic aspect and not the foundation of religion. Jesus, according to the speaker, was only a man and an economist. As the Roman empire fell, so will fall the system of society and government in this country, Mr. Gearlson concluded.

The persons in whom capitalism, society and wealth are represented have no legal or moral right to control the country and the world in the manner now in vogue, A. J. Cary, secretary of the local college, said. He said the controlling interest should rest with the working man who is the producer of the clothes we wear, the food we eat, the automobiles in which we ride, the builder of the roads and dams and the bridges and the buildings.

From 6 until 11 p. m. the Spring Grove Post No. 216, American Legion, conducted a block party and dance on an entire block of Main street, a band furnishing the music for the dance and party. Residences in that block were decorated, and the borough had decorated and illuminated the street.

Borough officials of Spring Grove had to arrange special parking fields to take care of the large number of automobiles which were attracted to the town by the festivities, and special police were required during the convention to direct traffic which was declared to have been the heaviest in the history of the borough.

The general committee in charge of the affair and which made all preliminary arrangements for the convention Saturday consisted of John F. Gotwalt, R. H. Lau, John A. Fultz, Ervin Gladfelter and Harvey A. Myers.

The route of the parade was South Main street to Railroad street; west to Water street, north to the town limits, east to College avenue, south on East street to Church, west to Main street, north to North Main, countermarch to South street, and was then dismissed.

up his hands and surrender, but he refused. Instead he walked to the steps of the church, turned around and I believe was about to offer a prayer, when one of the Southerners fired point blank at him.

"He fell to the pavement mortally wounded, with a ragged bullet wound along side his mouth. A comrade and I, who witnessed the shooting, ran to the fallen chaplain and carried him to the yard at the left side of the church, where we laid him on the grass. So far as I could see he was dead when we picked him up."

Mr. Carpenter, whose recollection of the stirring days of '63 is as clear as though the events had occurred recently, said he was herded with the other Union prisoners in the Square after he saw that the Rev. Howell was beyond mortal aid, and later rejoined his regiment in an exchange of prisoners.

Most of Mr. Carpenter's enlistment at Gettysburg was served as a stretcher bearer. He assisted surgeons who performed operations in Christ Lutheran church, which was one of the numerous temporary hospitals during the battle here. In telling of his experiences as an orderly at the hospital, Mr. Carpenter said he helped carry amputated arms and legs out of the place in armfuls, much like cordwood. "We buried them in the yard adjoining the church," he added.

For three days during the battle of Gettysburg, Mr. Carpenter said he did not see a person on the streets of town. "Apparently, they all were in cellars," he said.

"But Gettysburg has made wonderful strides forward since 1863. And even since 1913 when I was here last, the growth of Gettysburg has been remarkable."

After leaving the Army at the close of the war, Mr. Carpenter returned to Lewistown where for 46 years he was sexton of the Methodist Episcopal church. For several years, however, he has lived retired.

Both Mr. Carpenter and his wife expect to celebrate their sixtieth wedding anniversary on April 14 next year. If both keep their present state of health, they will have little trouble reaching the anniversary date.

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. Carpenter and his party were taken over the battlefield by J. A. Myrick, guide. During their stay here, the party was registered at the Hoffman Hotel.

BOYHOOD HEROES

stand many unguessed things about the other. Then Ah Lee bowed slightly and left the room.

Wrexham remained where he was. For a space the skipper stood motionless, watching the door that had closed. His face was a study in emotions. At length a sigh came from him. "Lord, but this is a rum go!" he breathed. "A rum go, and no mistake! First I get that letter about the other party, then I run head-on into this chap."

His eyes wandered to the photograph on the mantel, and dwelt upon it in curious wonder. He addressed himself to the picture. "And what happens? Why, miss, you turn up to save my rotten life, that's what! If I hadn't taken on this job, the yellow lad would ha' done for me. If it hadn't been for your picture, I'd not ha' taken it on. If it hadn't been—oh, Lord! I'm done up w' thinking about it, and that's the truth."

He sighed again, and lowered himself into his chair. As he himself might have expressed it, Wrexham could have been knocked down with a feather at the unexpected issues of his meeting with Ah Lee. It had not been a long conversation, but it had been frightfully tense for Wrexham, who had, during a good half of it, expected to be killed at each instant. Now he found himself weak and shaken.

"He meant it, about dyin' and so forth," he ruminated, and looked up again at the picture. "Yes, ma'am, he loves you, and no mistake! That turmeric-dyed limb of the devil is in love with you! Just the same as I am, and no harm intended by sayin' so. It's your eyes lookin' right down into a man! I'm beginning to believe that you do exist, just like your picture. If you do, Lord help me when we meet! I'll turn missionary or something."

"And you saved my life. Instead of killin' me, the yellow beggar wishes me good luck! The rummest thing I ever heard in my life. And why did he do it? Because you were his friend. Well, the whole thing's beyond me, that's all."

This was a mere figure of speech. The whole thing was not beyond Tom Wrexham, not in the least. As Ah Lee had said, he was no fool.

And he expected trouble when Macarty discovered that the dam was blown up.

CHAPTER XI

Captain Tom Wrexham made no mistake in judging his actions. He knew that his overt acts had committed him and that all parley with the Macartys was off. He expected to get some red-hot declaration of war, and was prepared to give as good as he got.

However, to his vague uneasiness, nothing happened. He saw nothing more of Felix Macarty. The Nautilus unhurt by her dip in the mud, floated once more with the full current of water. A sunlit peace and calm brooded over everything.

VACCINATION IN ORDER

Dr. Eugene Elgin, the county medical director, is to be commended for his early action in impressing parents, through the press, with the necessity and importance of having their children successfully vaccinated on the eve of another school term.

Few people today appreciate the suffering and terror that belonged to smallpox before the days of vaccination. In Boston, in 1721, with a population of 10,565, a total of 5989 persons were attacked with smallpox within a few months, and history is replete with similar examples.

Macaulay stated that in the early part of the eighteenth century it was unusual to meet anyone on the streets of London whose face was not scarred by the disease. Edward Jenner, the centenary of whose death is commemorated this year, performed the first vaccination with the virus of cowpox on May 14, 1796, and later proved that the boy was immune from smallpox.

In spite of the most bitter opposition, this simple, safe and certain remedy has won its way and is now practiced in every civilized country.

But the disease is not eradicated and wherever vaccination is not rigidly enforced, serious epidemics are certain sooner or later to leave death and mutilation in their path.

Probably no greater boon has been given to mankind by the medical profession than the smallpox preventative through vaccination and yet, because of its success, there are some who fail to appreciate what has been gained and refuse to accept its benefits, or do so reluctantly.

The history of the disease and its conquest should convince the most skeptical of the great good of vaccination. There certainly will be no necessity to employ enforcement measures so far as the enlightened parents in Adams county are concerned, and the warning of Doctor Elgin ought to be heeded immediately.

CLOSE OBSERVATORY

Research Work Impossible Because of Factory Vibrations.

Bethlehem, Pa., July 30.—Closing of the Sayre Observatory at Lehigh University is an instance where industry, created by science, has turned to destroy its benefactor.

For many years Lehigh astronomers have studied the heavens through the Zenith telescope at the Sayre Observatory and have recorded the phenomena in space photographically and mathematically. Now the observatory is rendered useless by vibrations of the earth caused by the passage of street cars a quarter of a mile away.

Photographs of stars are made by focusing the image from the telescope on the surface of a pan of mercury and photographing the reflection. This method is used in order to give a perfectly horizontal surface to the image. Vibrations of the earth from passing street cars and even from the heavy machinery at steel works a mile distant so disturbs the surface of the mercury that the reflection of the star being photographed flickers and blurs the negative.

The long series of observations that have contributed much important data to astronomy has been discontinued and henceforth the observatory will be used only for instruction of Lehigh undergraduates and for satisfying the desire of Bethlehem citizens who wish to view the wonders of the heavens through the telescope.

THE FISHERMAN

The man who loves to wade a stream
Like ordinary men may seem,
And, seen upon a city street,
He looks like all the men we meet;
Yet there is much escapes the eye;
We never know the passer-by
Or get beneath the veils which hide
A fellow being's gentler side.

We cannot read men's eyes and tell
What thoughts behind their glances dwell;

We cannot in the passing throng
Know just what ears are turned to song.

What hearts will throb with joy to see
The blossoms on a cherry tree,
What man of all the many here
Grows gentler when a child is near.

Yet when we pass upon a stream
A fisherman, though rough he seem
And clad in garments worn and old,
The story of his soul is told.
'Tis plain he loves a willow tree,
The laughter of the waters free,
The glory of the golden sun
And every rock he treads upon.

He finds the twitter of the birds
A sweeter speech than common words.

You know, because you find him there,
To him the distant hills are fair,
In him the wild flowers have a friend,

He loves the stream and every bend,
The tangled banks, the sky's blue span—
Or he'd not be a fisherman.

DIARY OF A SOLDIER

Interesting Experiences and Minute Details of the Civil War Career of William A. McIlhenny, Gettysburg Veteran, as Taken From Day to Day Ledger Published in The First Time.

THE AUTHOR

William A. McIlhenny, who now resides on Lincoln avenue, Gettysburg, was born August 31, 1839, in Strasburg township. He is the great-grandson of Robert McIlhenny, one of the pioneers of the county and a veteran of the Revolutionary war; a grandson of Robert McIlhenny, likewise, a Revolutionary War veteran, and the son of Hugh McIlhenny.

Mr. McIlhenny enlisted as a private at Frederick, Maryland, in Company C of Cole's Battalion, Maryland Cavalry. This company was made up largely of Pennsylvanians. He was subsequently advanced to corporal and later made sergeant of the company while serving in the Shenandoah Valley.

At the expiration of his original enlistment and at the time of the reorganization of Cole's Battalion he was appointed a second lieutenant of Company C of the regiment, generally known as the First Potomac Home Brigade of Maryland.—Editor's note.

May 15th, Sunday. Were ordered out early in the morning; marched to New Market; were in the advance; were thrown out on skirmish line on North of the town; rebel line of battle just South of the town, under General Breckenridge; rebels advanced on us; our infantry was away back; shells were dropping all around us and musket balls were whistling. When the rebel line got within gun-shot of our line we were relieved by an infantry regiment; we fell back of our infantry which was forming line of battle, but before they got in line the rebels were on us and put the whole force to rout. I with some more of our Battalion and with detachments of other cavalry under Colonel Taylor formed a rear guard and was the last to cross the North Branch of the Shenandoah River. We then burnt the bridge and then retreated all night to Mount Jackson.

May 16th. Retreated back to Cedar Creek in good order; almost dead with fatigue after being in the saddle continuously from early Sunday morning to Monday evening with very little to eat.

May 17th. Still at Cedar Creek; rebels did not follow us any farther; 40 men joined us from dismounted camp.

May 18th. Still at Cedar Creek; short of rations and no forage for horses. May 19th. Still camped at Cedar Creek; still out of forage; no fighting since Sunday.

May 20th. At Cedar Creek; moved camp; I was one of 20 men detailed to take the mail to Martinsburg, over fifty miles; traveled all night.

May 21st. Arrived at Martinsburg about 7 o'clock in the morning; very, very sleepy and tired. May 22nd. Remained at Martinsburg; had a good rest; met Cousin

May 23rd. Still at Martinsburg; was ordered back to front at 10 o'clock at night; traveled after night to keep out of the clutches of Mosby

Gorillas.

May 24th. Arrived at camp at Cedar Creek about 8 o'clock in the forenoon; a hard night's ride; received three letters.

May 25th. Remained in camp; General Seigle was relieved from command and General Hunter put in command of the army.

May 26th. Broke camp and marched to Woodstock; rumor of good news. May 27th. Camped at Woodstock; our men were sent on a scout; captured two "Johnnies" in a skirmish.

May 28th. Still at Woodstock; no forage for our horses and short of rations.

May 29th. Got ready to march at 4 o'clock in morning; marched to New Market; camped on old Battlefield, where we were defeated under General Seigle by rebel General Breckenridge.

May 30th. Remained in camp until evening; detailed for picket; remained on picket two nights.

May 31st. Still on picket; one of our picket posts was attacked by the rebels.

June 1st. Relieved from picket. Our Battalion was attached to General Hunter's Headquarters for special duty; got orders to march next morning. While we camped at New Market we found quite a number of our wounded in some of the houses in the town that were lying there for fifteen days without having their wounds dressed and were in a miserable condition.

June 2nd. Left New Market at daylight. We were in the advance; were thrown out as skirmishers on right. Skirmished with the rebels all the way to Harrisonburg. Charged through the town and drove the rebels out; camped at Harrisonburg.

June 3rd. Camped at Harrisonburg. We had some pretty bad boys among us and after we drove the rebels out of town, one of our boys discovered a saloon and he very politely told the proprietor that he would take charge of the place. He soon found a barrel of whiskey and commenced dealing out whiskey over the counter at a lively rate.

General Hunter, finding some of the men were coming into camp under the influence of whiskey, made an investigation and the sale of whiskey was soon stopped and the men put under arrest.

June 4th. Marched toward Post Republic; now at Post Republic the rebel army occupied a strong, fortified position, and General Hunter, determined to flank the position, took off to the left, crossing the South Branch track of the Shenandoah River; we forded the River; our Battalion was the first to cross and were thrown out on picket until the whole army got safely across, which took nearly all night; we got only half an hour's sleep.

Rounds Up Chicken Thieves

Continuing his investigation of the activities of chicken thieves in Washington county, Sheriff Kline, of Hagerstown, learned of a place in Clear-spring where 29 white leghorn chickens believed to have been stolen in Pennsylvania had been disposed of. The chickens were taken to Clear-spring in an automobile bearing a Pennsylvania license by two young men. The men and the machine correspond to the description furnished of chicken thieves who were active in the vicinity of Leitersburg some time ago. Five men who were captured by Sheriff Kline and Deputies Kaylor and Thurston when they attempted to sell a number of chickens alleged to have been stolen were held for the action of the Grand Jury in a bail of $300 each by Justice Bitner. Worthy Derr was the only one to furnish bond. The other men, all of whom are being held in jail, are: Clarence Rudy, Edward Kahlbaugh, Millard Kahlbaugh and Harry Smith.

Seek Escaped Prisoner.

Eluding his guards at a prison camp near Baltimore recently, James Stanfield, colored, Hagerstown, escaped from the camp and is believed to be coming toward Hagerstown. Hagerstown authorities on the lookout for Stanfield had been able to find no trace of the negro. Stanfield was arrested at his home some time ago by Sheriff Kline and Deputy Davis after he had threatened to shoot up Jonathan street. He was in possession of a revolver at the time and was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Pastor Declines Charge

The Rev. Walter Bryon Stehl, D. D., Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church of Hagerstown, has declined the call to become the Rector of Christ Lutheran Church, Williamsport, Pennsylvania, which was tendered him. After visiting Williamsport the early part of last week and looking over the field there Dr. Stehl returned and after careful consideration decided to remain in his present charge.

For a Farm Loan
See Your Banker

WHEN you obtain a mortgage loan on your farm property, there are other points to consider besides getting the actual cash. Some of these points are: The time-limit of the loan, how fast it pays itself off, the interest, the incidental fees, how long it takes for you to receive the money you want and—above all—the safeguards which the loan provides for your own protection.

All these questions are answered to your entire satisfaction, and to your advantage, when you place your farm mortgage through this bank.

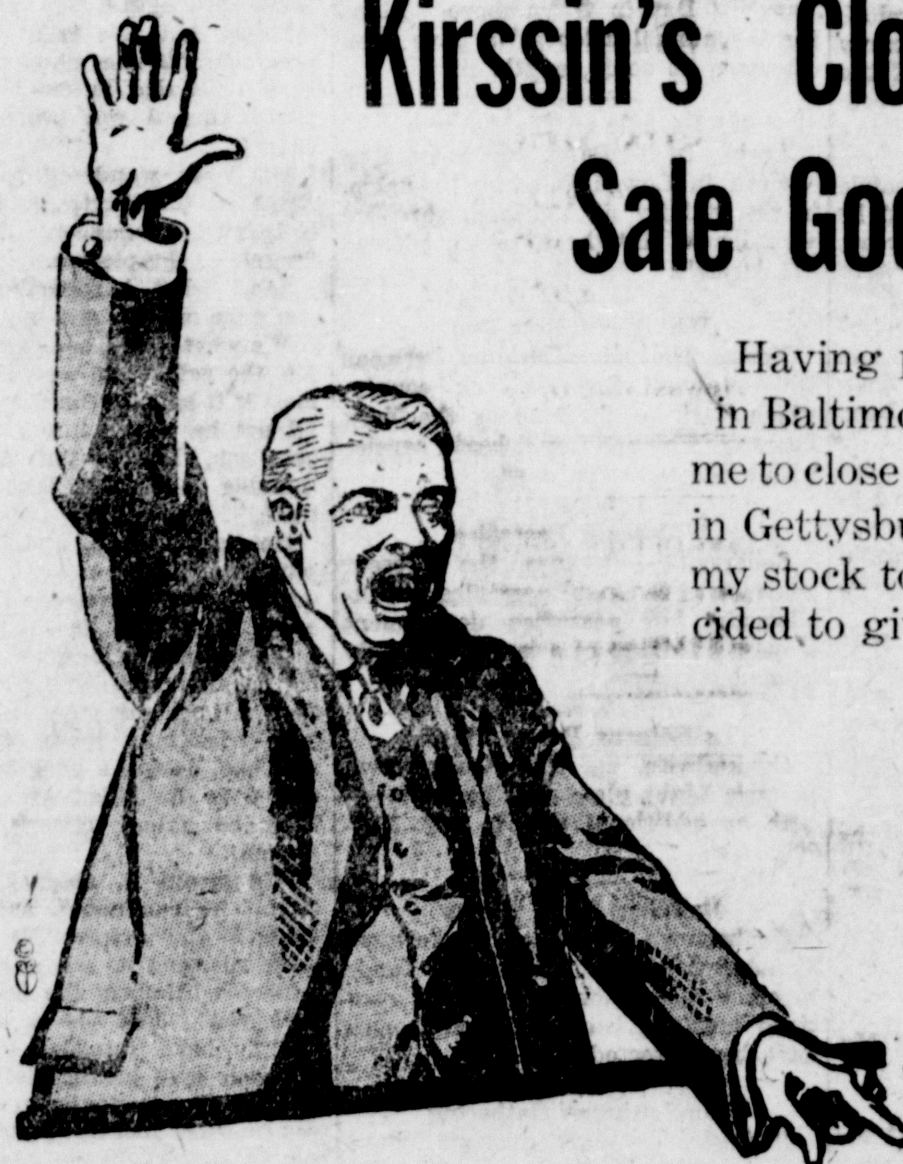

Through our co-operative arrangement with the Ohio-Pennsylvania Joint Stock Land Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, we are in a position to grant farm loans promptly, for thirty-three year periods, at six per cent interest. These loans never mature—they automatically pay themselves off. They are negotiated under strict Federal supervision. They may be paid off any time at your option.

They are recommended to you, by this bank, as the safest, simplest, and fairest type of farm mortgage loan obtainable anywhere.

We shall be glad to have you write—or better still, drop in—for complete information, which you may study at your leisure.

Kirssin's Closing Out Sale Goes On

Having purchased a business in Baltimore, it is necessary for me to close out my clothing store in Gettysburg. Rather than sell my stock to a jobber, I have decided to give my friends in this section the opportunity to lay in supplies of wearing apparel at cost prices.

Every article in this store has had the price cut to the lowest figure—prices far lower than ordinary sales. You need only come to this store, examine the goods, and get the prices to be convinced that we are offering real bargains at big savings. Friends, this is your opportunity. The sale will continue for only a short time, so do not delay.

National Guard at Camp

All plans have been completed for the holding of the annual summer training camp of the First Regiment, Maryland National Guard, at Saunderson's Range. Three units with more than 120 officers and men left Frederick early Saturday morning by train. The regimental headquarters office and those in charge left by truck for the camp so as to be completely set up and in operation when the troops begin to arrive. The units which left on the early morning train Saturday are Company A, Captain Robert F. Barrick and Lieuts. Anders and Kreh, consisting of 60 men; First Regiment Band, Warrant Officer H. D. Hagen, consisting of 45 men; Battalion Headquarters Company, Lieuts. Winebrenner and Staley, consisting of 15 men. The headquarters company of the second battalion was recently organized in Frederick and was mustered in last week.

Plead for Bible School

Championing the cause of the Daily Vacation Bible School in Frederick, a number of residents of East Church street have expressed their entire approval of the school, the way it is conducted and the behavior of the children. A complaint was recently made to Superintendent G. Lloyd Palmer that the children disturbed the peace and quiet of the neighborhood by their noisy play, and it was asked that the school should not be returned next year. Now other people of the neighborhood have come forward with the statement that they have not been annoyed in the slightest by the children, that they feel that the Bible School is a good thing for the city and for the neighborhood, and that they hope it will be returned to the East Church street school again next year.

Cracker Shop Opens

Formal opening of the Cracker Shop of the G. L. Baking Company was made in Frederick, according to the announcement made by the firm. The new store, located in Frederick, opposite the Francis Scott Key Hotel, has been specially equipped, and the furnishings are attractive. The Cracker Shop will have on display and for sale products of the G. L. Baking Company. The plant manufactures 75 different kinds of cakes and crackers, and the new store will give Frederick people the opportunity to purchase any of the goods.

Catch 226 Fish

Two hundred and twenty-six trout and hardheads were caught by a party of Frederick fishermen Thursday, who went to Annapolis and then sailed out 12 miles on the Chesapeake bay. Those in the party were S. J. Gladhill and two sons, Oscar and Paul; James C. Rowe, Emory B. Shipley, G. O. Paxson and son, George. The largest fish was a trout and weighed over five pounds. The party ran into a school of fish at 4 o'clock and for two hours were kept busy pulling the finny tribe to their boat.
